

E. B. Marks Dies
Mincola, N. Y., Dec. 18 (AP)—Edward B. Marks, 80, head of the Song publishing firm of Edward B. Marks Music Corporation, which published some of the first songs of Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern and Sigmund Romberg, died of pneumonia last night at Nassau Hospital. He entered the hospital Sunday. Marks, the son of a fireman whose father had been a cantor in Berlin, was a song writer himself. Such old favorites as "My Mother Was a Lady" and "The Little Lost Child" were among his compositions. After many years of song plugging in such amusement places as Tony Pastor's, marks gave up song writing for publishing. His firm published more than 20,000 songs, over a period of 50 years. He was a native of Troy, N. Y.

Would Find His Dog
Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 18 (AP)—A Watertown war veteran is so anxious to find a dog he once nursed back to health that he plans reenlistment in the army and a request for European service. James E. Maitland, discharged last summer, said yesterday that his unit, Company A, 29th Infantry, picked up the animal in Iceland and later took it to England. There it was struck by a motorcycle but Maitland nursed the dog until it was well. The Watertown man said efforts to locate the animal, which he left with his unit when he returned home, had failed.

Yamashita Case
Awaits Next Step
By Supreme Court

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—The first Japanese convicted as a war criminal has his toe inside the door of the United States Supreme Court. But whether he will get any farther is anybody's long guess.

Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita yesterday won a Supreme Court order staying the execution ordered for him by an American military commission in Manila. The commission decreed death for the once-bold "Tiger of Malaya" on the ground that he condoned brutal atrocities by Japanese troops in the Philippines.

The high court's stay was unique in that it was granted to an enemy alien. Otherwise it was routine, because persons appealing from trials in which they were condemned to death usually get automatic stays of execution. The War Department earlier had ordered the Yamashita execution help up pending action by the Supreme Court.

The all-important step in Yamashita's case will be the court's next decision—whether it will grant him a review of what happened in the Philippine Supreme Court. That tribunal threw out the general's contention that the military commission was illegal and that civil courts should take over his case.

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey says he has not given the "slightest consideration" to the question of his running again next year and that the "subject hasn't come up yet."

His statement was made at a news conference following an announcement by State Republican Committee Chairman Glen R. Bedenkapp that it was his assumption Dewey would seek re-election and would win. He must be a mind reader.

Dewey said regarding Bedenkapp's declaration. Bedenkapp, at an earlier news conference, also was asked whether his statement was the official announcement of Dewey's candidacy.

"He'll announce it himself," he replied.

State May Begin
Housing Work in Fox Hills Section

Eighty-six Buildings Will Be Made Into Two and Three-Room Apartments

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—Conversion of the former army installation at Fox Hills, Staten Island, into 700 emergency housing units may begin next week and the state hopes to have the homes ready for occupancy by late February.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey told a news conference yesterday that the state expected to obtain title to the property this week. The project is one of the four planned for New York as part of a program to alleviate a critical housing shortage.

Regarding the Fox Hills project, which will be converted at a cost of $800,000, Dewey said:

"We haven't all the materials which will be required but there is enough stuff on hand to make a beginning a week from now, if the state receives title to the land from the federal government during this week as we hope will be the case."

The 86 buildings at the former army base will be converted into two and three-room apartments. Architects' plans for the three-room apartments call for living rooms 15 feet nine inches by nine feet six inches. One bedroom will be 11 feet by nine feet, six inches, and the second bedroom will be eight feet, six inches by nine feet six inches.

The two-room apartments, the governor said, will include a living room 12 feet by 14 feet, three inches, and a bedroom eight feet six inches by 11 feet three inches.

In both two and three-room apartments, he said, there will be a gas range, sink and refrigerator along one side of the living room; and bath facilities, including a stall shower, off the bedroom.

Will Fix Rents

Dewey said that when the project was finished the state would turn it over to the city for administration. Rents will be fixed later, he said, and the state will recoup its money through them.

The governor also replied to an emergency housing report submitted to Mayor-elect William O'Dwyer Sunday by a committee headed by Robert Moses, city park commissioner.

Regarding the committee's suggestion that approximately 10,000 families might be housed in Quonset huts obtained from the army and navy, Dewey said:

"The idea of using Quonset huts depends upon how hard up you are. They're warm and dry. They're shelter. But the trouble is that you have to put in pavement, sewers, gas, electricity, etc., and once you have provided all these, you find that you've built practically a whole new community."

Meanwhile, Leo F. Gentner, regional O.P.A. administrator, announced today the standardization of price ceilings on 34 major "hard" building materials for New York city and Nassau county.

He declared the action was "expected to accelerate housing construction and spur builders to provide dwelling units for millions of Americans unable to find living quarters."

Gentner said the new orders place a flat dollars-and-cents price on various materials affected, replacing the prevailing ceilings, which varied from dealer to dealer, depending on what prices were charged in the base period, March, 1942.

Included in the list of materials are plaster, bricks, tile, cement, lath, wallboard, clay, sewer-pipe, plywood, and other commodities.

SURVIVAL FOR WHAT?

Mothers and babies have a better chance to survive now than ten years ago. The Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor says that while 58 of every 1,000 babies died at birth in 1933, only 40 died in 1943. In 1933, sixty-two mothers out of every 10,000 died in childbirth as against 24 two years ago. The year 1933 saw the lowest birth rate in the nation's history while in 1943 births, as to numbers, reached the all time high of 3,000,000.

While more babies actually were born in 1943 than in 1915-1916, the rate during these years of World War I was higher, being 25 out of every 1,000 in population, and only 21.5 per 1,000 in 1943. In 1943, however, 72 per cent of the babies born arrived in hospitals, against only 35 per cent the years before.

The greatest cut in infant mortality rate as to states was in North Dakota, and the greatest improvement in mother death rate was in Nevada. Slightly fewer Negro babies are being born now than formerly proportionate to other births, the rate being one in nine. Their babies' and mothers' risks are greater than in the white group, probably for economic reasons.

While babies' and mothers' death rates have been cut remarkably, there are 118,000 babies and 7,000 mothers dying annually, a figure that could be cut, said Dr. Martha Eliot, associate chief of the bureau, "if the care we know so well how to give were available to all groups."

The next step after the babies' lives are saved will be to make the world a place in which they can safely live. There should be incentive for survival.

LAZY CITIZENS

There are some things in which Americans might profitably imitate the British. Ex-Gov. Charles Edison of New Jersey calls attention to one.

"Among so-called intelligent and educated Americans," he says, "there has been almost a cult of indifference to politics. In their eagerness to make money or get ahead in their professions, they have convinced themselves that politics is too tiresome and dirty for them. If it is really so, their disdainful indifference is greatly responsible."

"There has never been any such tradition in England. No man or woman is thought too good or too busy to serve the king—that is, the nation. We need to build up in this country a like custom of public service."

The war has helped build up such a tradition here. Thousands were glad to help the war effort. Why can they not help the country in peace?

NEW CHESS STAR

A new chess star is looming on the horizon. David Bronstein, a Russian, is only 21, but he qualified for a tournament of masters in which he defeated the Russian leader, Mikhail M. Botvinnik, and finally finished third out of a field of 20.

Chess brilliancy often flowers early. The great master of them all, Paul Morphy of New Orleans, showed his genius at 12. A recent American champion, Samuel Reshevsky, toured the country giving chess exhibitions when only eight.

Russian chess has just now a higher standard than that of any other country, presumably because it is taught in the schools and otherwise encouraged. Bronstein's success in a land where so many are gifted shows that he will bear watching.

LUCKY NEW YORK

New York City has borne a charmed life. With all the bombing to which the poor old world has been subjected in recent times, our metropolis has never been touched. But it was a close shave in this last war. Among the interesting developments of the Nuremberg trial now under way in Germany is the revelation that Hermann Goering, the Nazi air chief, asked the German aircraft industry in 1938 to produce planes carrying five-ton bomb loads to New York to "stop the mouths of the arrogant people over there."

We Americans are inclined to think we

FACT SHEET NO. 37

I have a thing called Fact Sheet Vol. 1, No. 37 I & E. Section, Base K, APO 72, 21 Nov. 1945. It is "published weekly to aid 1 and E officers in preparing for discussion groups. It is suggested that a file be maintained." My copy comes from the Philippine Islands.

This particular document deals with the "Full Employment Bill" and is subheaded "Jobs for All." It is a little difficult quite to understand why these fact sheets were issued. The assumption apparently is that the American Army officers are incapable of understanding their own country, fail to read books, magazines and newspapers, are lacking in the ordinary background of high school and college education, although they have undertaken to remake and re-educate the world. This document gives the officer much information which might generally be classified as bunk. Let me cite an example:

"Since the outbreak of the war in Europe in 1939, and even before, foreign policy has dominated all national political campaigns, both presidential and congressional (omitted by agreement in the 1944 campaign—Sok), and all legislative battles in Washington. During this period, particularly before Pearl Harbor, the administration was forced to base its political strategy on the necessity of winning majority or even two-thirds support for its foreign-policy program. Congressional battle lines were drawn accordingly. If concessions were demanded by key Southern Democrats or by conservatives but internationally minded Republicans, they were granted, and progressively measures in domestic affairs went by the board. One example will suffice: 'The Scraping (sic) of the National Resources Planning Board in 1941.'"

In a word, it is here stated that the American government has been utterly unprincipled but has functioned opportunisticly in order to get members of Congress to swing behind the President's internationalist program. So the President took no "progressive measures" (page Sewall Avery) because he was kidding the Congress along. It is a bit difficult to understand where that two-thirds support comes in, as that applies only to treaties, and the example cited, the National Resources Planning Board, was nothing that involves evidence of anything.

Now, however, all is changed, according to the booklet. This country is no longer bothered by its international relations; so says Fact Sheet No. 37. Why? Because of the "passage of Bretton Woods and the San Francisco Charter, and the end of the war." Precisely how these have solved the problem of the atomic bomb, the allied government of Germany, the boundaries of Russia, the revolt in Iran, the Communist war in China, the future of France and Spain, air bases for American planes, international exchange, gifts called loans to Great Britain and probably everybody else—I do not know. This prognostication is particularly noteworthy: "... Pre-Pearl Harbor voting will lose all importance." But that was true on December 8, 1941.

The Army is supposed not to engage in politics, but look at this paragraph: "... With the exception of the Hearst and McCormick-Patterson press and a few independent isolationist papers, the powerful press of America has been completely committed to the international point of view, at least in its broadest aspects. Indeed, it can be said that the majority of the press crusaded for Dumbarton Oaks (Do you remember that one?—Sok) and the San Francisco Charter. The air waves were filled with programs supporting general internationalism and few of these programs were considered so controversial as to require answers on free time."

And these two: "Clearly the situation is far different in the debates over economic policy. The ownership of the opinion industry is business, big business. This has been so clearly reflected in recent presidential campaigns that it would be foolhardy to expect a reversal of position now on similarly controversial issues."

"The New York Times has been actively crusading against the full-employment bill ever since it was first suggested in December of last year."

At the end of this document is an advertisement: "LISTEN TO ROAD TO FREEDOM—TUESDAY OVER WVKF AT 1815 HOURS."

Who writes this stuff for the Army? Who is responsible for its publication? Who authorized the Army to become a political propagandist? There ought to be an explanation. (Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CONTACT LENSES

It took years for the public to get used to seeing children wearing glasses as only students or the elderly were supposed to wear them. Now the comfort of well-adjusted glasses makes the wearer forget that glasses may make him look older.

When we first saw or heard about contact lenses, where the artificial lens is placed directly under the eyelids, we thought that again it was the fear of looking old that was making contact lenses popular. As a matter of fact this may be the reason they are worn by some but their use is a necessity in a great many cases. One of the cases where contact lenses are necessary is keratoconus in which the cornea or outer front surface of the eyeball loses some of its thin layers of tissue, all over the cornea to bulge forward and become cone-shaped. By bulging forward the distance to the back part of the eye is lengthened and the individual becomes short-sighted or more short-sighted in addition to which there is some scarring, and astigmatism (where object is not clear cut or distinct) occurs. Vitamin B complex is used in these cases.

It is known that many who have tried to use contact lenses have experienced considerable difficulty in adjusting them and are unable to wear them for any length of time. It will be of help to these individuals to learn of the personal experience of a physician who finds it necessary to wear them.

In Clinical Medicine, Dr. Thomas Augustus Griffith, Lexington, Kentucky, reports wearing contact lenses for over two years, because of keratoconus. Others though free from eye disturbances who find it necessary to wear contact lenses are dancers, actors, football players, golfers, boxers, public speakers, scamen (in which case the lids act as windshield wipers), pilots, chemical workers and others.

From personal experience Dr. Griffith makes these suggestions: "A person who is obligated to wear these chemical eyes should have regular hours, his special life likewise has to be scheduled, must learn just which fluid to use which will not cloud up too soon, just how long to wear the lenses at one time, it is advised not to wear the lenses after a slight burning sensation occurs."

News Item

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The ice house of the Hudson River Navigation Co. at Kingston Point, just north of the Rondout Yacht Club, was burned to the ground on April 4, 1923. The ice house had formerly been owned by the Knickerbocker Ice Co. who had sold it to the navigation company four years prior to the fire. The ice house had a capacity of 13,000 tons. Its destruction marked the disappearance of all the ice houses in the vicinity of Kingston Point.

Captain Edward Albrecht of the Cornell Fire Station was injured slightly while fighting the fire.

The burning of the old ice house recalled to mind the years when ice was harvested from the Hudson river. It was the big winter industry along the river, and millions of tons were harvested and stored in ice houses. During the summer months the ice would be loaded aboard ice barges and towed to New York City.

Undoubtedly many readers will recall the winters when they, as young men, used to work on the ice harvest in this vicinity. Means of transportation were limited and many men walked several miles to and from work each day.

Dr. Henry Behrens, a former well known dentist of this city, filed his resignation as a member of the Common Council with Mayor Walter P. Crane on April 4, 1923. Dr. Behrens had been representing the Eleventh Ward in the council.

That year he bought a new home on Washington avenue in the Twelfth Ward, which was his reason for resigning. I recall the years when Dr. Behrens had his dental office in the old Crosby building on lower Broadway, across the street from the Freeman office.

Dr. Behrens, even on the coldest days of winter, would always walk from his home in the Eleventh Ward to his office. While a member of the city's legislative body he always took an active interest in the affairs of his ward, and the city at large. He died some years ago.

For years the leading Lutheran clergyman in Kingston and vicinity was the Rev. Adam Schmidt-konz, who served the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church on Spring street for approximately 35 years.

At a meeting of the church council on April 2, 1923, the veteran pastor filed his resignation to take effect on November 4, of that year. The resignation was totally unexpected.

During the years that Pastor Schmidt-konz served the Lutheran Church it grew in membership and importance in the religious life of Kingston. Pastor Schmidt-konz died some years ago.

The newly organized Masonic Club of Kingston on Saturday evening, March 31, 1923, formally opened its new club rooms in the Meador building at 635 Broadway, near Henry street. The club had the two upper floors of the building fitted up for club purposes.

Abraham W. Parsell, for years one of the best known marine engineers on the Hudson river, died on March 18, 1923, in his home in Port Ewen, in his 58th year. He had served on the river for more than three score years.

He began his long river career when a boy of 15 years, and on July 3, 1858, he took the post of fireman on the old steamboat James Madison, owned by the late Major Thomas Corbitt, and used for towing barges between Rondout and New York.

Mr. Parsell remained with the Corbitt Line for some 16 years, and later went for a time with the Citizens' Line, operating between Albany and New York.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

Shanghai, Dec. 18 (AP)—If you ask any navy men who is the most determined man they know, many will answer: "Uncle Dan Barby," commander of the U. S. Seventh Fleet.

Vice Adm. Daniel Edward Barby has directed more amphibious landings than any man in history—62—and has been on continuous sea duty in combat zones longer than any other flag officer in the navy. Perhaps one reason he has been such a hefty warrior is that he had to fight his way into uniform.

No one has ever been able to make him quit, and neither could the Annapolis medical board which rejected him on physical grounds after he had won appointment to the academy from Portland, Ore., in 1908. He was highest in the competitive exams for the appointment.

"You have heart murmurs and palpitations," academy doctors told him kindly, "but many people have lived to a ripe old age with that condition."

It frightened the 18-year-old boy, but made him angry, too. He decided he didn't believe them. He boarded a train for Washington, D. C., and called at the office of the navy's surgeon general.

The surgeon general's secretary tried to put the young stranger off, but he stood his ground. "I've come a long way," he declared. "The surgeon general saw him, but shook his head. There was nothing he could do."

Barby, who the night before had written a note to his hotel manager telling what to do with the body if he died in his sleep, asked "who is the greatest heart specialist in America?"

The surgeon general smiled. "There is a Doctor Musser in Philadelphia—if he says you're all right, you're as good as in."

"He will, sir," said the boy, and left for Philadelphia. "I've come a long way," he began stubbornly as he reached the famed doctor's office without an appointment. And his insistence again won him entry.

But no sooner had he finished his examination than he fainted. Revived, young Barby acknowledged sadly, "I guess they were right."

"No," said the doctor, "I just think you're excited. Come back tomorrow."

He did. He passed. Exultantly he returned to the surgeon general, who read the Philadelphia specialist's verdict and told him, with a grin:

"You go down and tell that academy board to give you another examination, and if they reject you I'll appoint another board and serve on it myself."

Barby told the board. The board passed Barby. There was another obstacle, but that time his Oregon senator had learned of his first rejection and appointed another boy.

The senator was out of town, but young Barby found his secretary, and began impudently, "I have come a long way..." at his insistence, the secretary—who was in her room drying her laundry—sent a telegram to Oregon instructing the second appointee to remain there.

Then Barby found the senator, who said he'd withdraw the second appointment if the lad hadn't already left for Annapolis. He hadn't. Barby's telegram had forestalled that.

So determined Dan got into Annapolis, two months late. He had "come a long way," and he'd gone a long way since then, too!

Views of Stockholders Would Present New Angle Regarding Wage Disputes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 18—When the Auto Workers Union chief asked Prime Minister Attlee to express his opinion on the issues in the automobile strike on the ground that the British government held upwards of 400,000 shares out of the 40,000,000 issued by General Motors, an interesting precedent was established, namely the desire of the union executives to hear from corporation stockholders.

Surely if the opinion of British holders is sought, there is every reason to believe that the opinion of American citizens who own almost all of the General Motors shares would be equally interesting to union folks. Some of these stockholders may be reluctant about expressing themselves but, since this is a democratic country, and the views of workers are canvassed with the help of the government under the Smith-Connally Law, it might be worth the experiment to have the federal establishment take a vote among stockholders, too.

Such a course might possibly rebound to the disadvantage of the union side, because stockholders rarely favor the granting of concessions which might conceivably affect their dividends. Modern managements, indeed, in some large companies have quite a difficult time justifying their attitudes toward labor and the chances are that stockholder groups would be found even more opposed to the wage increases at this time than are the management executives.

But, in any event, there is merit in having the views of both sides comprehensively stated. Thus General Motors is a large corporation with tens of thousands of stockholders from every walk of life.

To canvass them might cost some money for postage but the fact-finding panel might be justified in asking the views or votes of the stockholders just as the government does now with respect to strike votes, for which the National Labor Relations Board bears the cost. The thing might prove to be a constructive step, because if stockholder opinions are sought it might lead to some method of going over the heads of the union officers, too. The labor union objection to this would be vehement. Yet the auto workers chief has gone over the heads of the management representatives dealing directly with stockholders in Great Britain, so possibly there is equal merit in allowing the fact-finding panel now to go directly both to the rank and file of the workers and the stockholders.

Collective bargaining up to now has been confined wholly to representatives of the union and of the employers. The Wagner Law virtually forbids any dealings between the employer and employees, confining the contact in the case of a recognized union to the union committee of negotiators only. If, however, the stockholders are to become the principals—and apparently the auto union chief's communication to the British stockholders can be so construed—it might turn out that, under the new precedent, the stockholders might feel that they should be asked hereafter always to approve or disapprove what the management offers. This might consume more time and, could prolong strikes but it's a democratic method and gives the union assurance that they are dealing with the true owners and not mere representatives of management. Maybe the auto workers chiefs will not be so happy over their proposal when they consider what a Pandora's box of complications it opens up.

As for the President's fact-finding proposal, here is an opportunity for a federal agency to get the views of stockholders, union chiefs, and management. Curiously enough, labor leaders who have accepted the fact-finding panel for the study of the General Motors strike do not wish to give such panels statutory authority. If the latter had the backing of federal statute, there would be no limit really to the information that might be gathered in connection with work stoppages. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

Carlson Uses His Helicopter to Advantage

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 18 (AP).—Floyd W. Carlson, chief helicopter test pilot for Bell Aircraft, who lives in suburban Williamsburgh, had no transportation problem when Buffalo's record-breaking blizzard brought two and a half feet of snow to his neighborhood.

He and neighbor David G. Forman, manager of Bell's helicopter operations, simply swept off some snow from the fuselage and cabin of Carlson's test ship, shook the rotor blades a little to spill off the snow accumulated there and showed a small clearance for the anti-torque propeller, and they were set to go.

Twelve minutes and 15 miles later they landed without incident at the Bell plant in Niagara Falls. Carlson explained that for two weeks he had been commuting in the helicopter under the heading of service tests, adding:

"The winds were a trifle gusty, but not bothersome. As a matter of fact, the weather wasn't the worst of the two-week testing period. I have flown through rain, steel, snow, winds of considerable force and fog—which is just about all there is in the weather book."

Fact-Finders Are In Adjournment To Await Decision

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP).—Government refusal to determine immediately the relationship of industry prices and profits to federally recommended wage increases today forced the oil-wage fact-finding board to adjourn until Friday.

By that time, Board Chairman Frank P. Graham promised that Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach would have stated the government's position—which Graham indicated, must be determined meanwhile on high administration levels.

Oil industry spokesmen refused to continue in the fact-finding hearing until the board decided whether, in making any recommendations on C.I.O. demands for a 30 per cent wage increase, it would consider possible price increases on oil products.

Graham declared the issue was "an over-all governmental problem" which administration officials now were considering and that it would "take time for the government to give its answer."

The formulation of the reply, regarded as a basic policy decision of far-reaching effect in such labor disputes as the General Motors strike and the pending steel strike, will be left to Schwellenbach, Economic Stabilizer John C. Collet, and other interested government agencies, Graham explained.

The price question stalled the oil hearing most of yesterday and the fact-finders had hoped to obtain an answer by this morning. Graham reported, however, that Schwellenbach's office had informed him that Friday would be the earliest date on which the labor secretary could answer.

At the same time, Graham declined to give a definite board reply to another C.I.O. oil workers demand that the oil companies' books be introduced as evidence in the hearing.

The oil workers are asking a 30 per cent wage increase.

Since fact-finding, as a means of settling labor troubles, was first proposed weeks ago, industry representatives have opposed any use of company books. They contend trade secrets would be made public that competitive positions would be endangered, and that the practice would lead to "snooping" by government fact-finders.

The Pureoil Company of Chicago withdrew from the proceedings yesterday pending settlement of the profits question.

The profits and prices questions have been raised frequently in connection with the General Motors strike. This dispute comes before a fact-finding board here Wednesday, and G.M. observers are watching the oil hearing closely.

19 Persons Arrested

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP).—The F.B.I. announced today that 19 persons in New York, Philadelphia and Miami Beach, Fla., have been taken into custody as the result of the theft of merchandise valued at more than $125,000. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said that three thefts occurred in Philadelphia and one in New York city. The merchandise was either owned by the government or moving in interstate commerce, he said. Hoover added in a statement that a large part of the stolen goods, consisting mainly of woolen cloth, found its way into what he called "black market" operations in the New York area.

Tropical Santa

Guam, Dec. 18 (AP)—To the war-improvised Marianas islands' children, Santa Claus this year is not a stout old man in a red costume riding in a sleigh.

He is a brawny, bare-chested Seabee—Harry F. Smith of Langhorne, Pa.—who during the war rode the bucking seat of a bulldozer, but now is turning his war tools to the fashioning of dolls, Mickey Mouse and Bambi figures, wagons and oth. toys. "Kids are kids the world over," says Smith, "and Christmas without toys is no Christmas at all."

Double Duty

Los Angeles, Dec. 18 (AP)—Santa Claus may walk a picket line at the General Motors plant where 1,000 C.I.O. workers are on strike, union officials said today. If weather conditions permit, plans call for children of the pickets to spend the day with their daddies—and Santa Claus—in the plant's vicinity.

He had an idea which he said worked like a charm. He drove alongside the Gallup brick plant and parked in the cozy warmth of the roaring kilns.

It is expected that about 300 children will be entertained with gifts, refreshments and a program of variety events.

Nocando League Moves to Central Recreation Alleys

Bowlers of the Nocando League are requested to be at Central Recreation Alleys, Thursday at 8:30 p. m. in order to start their matches at 9 o'clock. President William Mohr said today as he announced a change from Everick's alleys to the Railroad avenue maple lanes.

The Nocando loop rolled at Everick's for approximately five years, before the recent shift necessitated by the Albany avenue institution's sale for conversion to a shoe factory.

President Mohr said he anticipated no depression in enthusiasm because of shift in locale. "Our boys get a kick out of bowling no matter what alleys they are on," he said, "and I look for this season to be as successful for the remainder of the schedule as it has been to date."

The Nocando League instituted the idea of holding a welcome home party for bowlers returning from service and the loop has contributed $90 to the general community's treasury so far towards promoting the event.

Pellone in Line Now For Another Bout

New York, Dec. 18 (AP) — Tony Pellone, a promising New York lightweight, is in line for another Madison Square Garden match on the strength of his triumph over Patsy Giovannelli, a rugged Brooklyn scrapper. Pellone, who barely posed out Giovannelli several weeks ago, showed he had the Brooklyn number when he stopped him in the ninth round of their 10-round main bout at the Eighth avenue arena last night. Pellone outboxed his opponent 241 to 133.

Bedford Scored Upon First in Three Years

Shelbyville, Tenn., Dec. 18 (AP) — The Bedford County Training School suffered a minor disappointment on the football field this year—an opponent scored.

In 32 consecutive games over the past three years, the negro team was undefeated, untied and unscored on while running up a total of 631 points. In the final game this year Holloway High of Murfreesboro, Tenn., scored twice. The final score was 25-13.

'Battle of Bucks' Is Real Threat to Cash Circuits Says Golden Boy

By JERRY LISKA

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP) — Harold (Red) Grange, football's golden boy of the twenties, thinks there is room on the professional gridiron for both the National Football League and the proposed All-America conference, but not if they engage in a threatened "battle of bucks."

Grange, once one of the highest paid players in the professional game, said in an interview today that wide-open bidding for talent would result in financial ruin for one or both leagues.

Referring to a purported $20,000 annual contract signed last week-end by Bob Waterfield, star of Cleveland's new National League team, Grange asserted that "there just isn't that kind of dough in professional football."

Deserve a Lot

"Of course, the players deserve all the money they can get," declared the University of Illinois' former famed Galloping Ghost. "It's the first time pro really has been in a position to dictate. But it may turn out to be simply another case of killing the goose that lays the golden egg."

Grange said the All-America Conference, which already has wooed a number of outstanding drafted players and the Brooklyn team from the National League, faced a big problem in building fan interest. The National Football League has survived 25 years, he emphasized, not because of "name" players—many of its stars were from small colleges—but because of intense team rivalries.

Short Season

"Newcomers in the pro game seem to forget that football is a 10-game season, whereas baseball has a 154-game schedule," asserted Grange, who several months ago resigned as president of the proposed United States Football League. "A $10,000 yearly salary in pro football means $1,000 a game, but only few get that much."

"I understand the All-America has some affluent backers, but it will take plenty of financing to

Better Bowling By Billy Sixty

The Stance: Footwork is the foundation of successful bowling. It begins with the proper stance, or the position taken preparatory to the run to the foul line and the delivery of the ball.

Watch the stars in action—Buddy Bonar, Ned Day, Hank Marino, Joe Wilman, Ad Carlson, Andy Varipapa, and all the rest—and you will see them set themselves with great care at exactly the same distance from the foul line.

Some of them use the ball return rack as a means of measuring the distance; some use the Newell post, and some even "pace" backward from the foul line to get their position.

The importance of the stance from the point of unvarying distance cannot be stressed too greatly. It is the means of getting rhythm into the stride and the swing. It means an unchanging and effective delivery of the ball by finishing always at the same spot at the foul line. When the bowler does not set himself properly with regard to distance for the stride, it frequently means a foul penalty for touching or sliding over the line.

Footwork differs in steps taken, varying from three to five or more steps. Therefore, the stance naturally changes in relation to the foul line. The distance lengthens as the steps increase. But the stance "spot" must unflinchingly be the same. It mustn't vary an inch. And it doesn't—with the high ranking bowlers.

Eastern Stars Attended Chalk Talk Instead

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP) — Near-zero temperatures halted the scheduled workout yesterday of a group of eastern all-star football players before they trained last night for San Francisco and the 21st annual East-West Shrine benefit game on January 1.

Instead, the squad had a chalk talk in Northwestern's Dyche Stadium, conducted by Coaches Andy Kerr of Colgate, Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Benny Feathers of North Carolina State.

The players are scheduled to hold a workout Wednesday at Ogden, Utah, and will arrive in San Francisco on Thursday.

Bowlers Will Hold Parley To Report on Party Funds

Keresman Praises Way Keglers Helped in Various Drives During War

In letters to the presidents of the various bowling leagues of Kingston, Chairman Peter Keresman of the committee planning the welcome home for keggers who served in the armed forces, announced the next meeting of the group for Thursday, December 20, at 9 p. m. in Central Recreation Alleys, Railroad avenue.

Chairman Keresman urged that complete reports on funds be made at the Thursday meeting, and complimented The Freeman and Nocando Leagues, also the lady bowlers of the city for their cooperation and support to date.

His letter follows:

"The report at the last meeting indicated that we have cash on hand to the amount of about $500. However, this is only about one-half of the goal set at the first meeting of this committee. It is evident from the general discussions that many of the bowlers in the various leagues have not, as yet, been contacted for their donations. It was originally agreed that the presidents of each league would see to it that their members were approached.

"Therefore, I urge you to canvass your members without delay, and have a complete report to your members for they were advised that you would do so."

"A splendid example of wholehearted support in our effort to honor the returning service bowlers, was exhibited by the 100 per cent cooperation of The Freeman and Nocando Leagues, as well as the Ladies' Leagues."

"The bowlers of this city can indeed be proud of the continuous interest shown and efforts put forth in raising funds for various purposes for our armed forces. Let

Keeley Keglers Rolls 1,240 in Chicago Singles

Chicago, Dec. 18 (AP) — The Keeley bowling team, which recently posted a 3,463 series for the nation's best scorers this season, shot a 1,240 single team game last night, another high for the current season.

Paul Marion, who fashioned a 298 on 11 consecutive strikes, missing a perfect score when two pins remained standing, led the Keeley squad. George Calder shot 268, Harold Ploch followed with 254, Matt Simmons had 225 and Carl Winterberg was low man with 195. Marion's three-game total was 764, one of the highs for the year.

Gail Bishop Drops In 23 Cage Points

Fort Lewis, Wash., Dec. 18 (AP) — Gail Bishop, who tallied 1,195 basketball points last season to lead the national scoring race, made his first appearance of the current season last night in rather disappointing fashion. He scored only 23 points.

The former Washington State College star, however, paced the teenagers on his War Department Training Center quintet to a 63-45 victory over the Fort Lewis Medics.

Bishop averaged 26 points a game last season.

Kingston High Plays Arlington Wednesday Night

Maroons Hope to Pack
Away Second Victory;
Meet Port Jervis
on Friday

Hoping to give their followers a nice Christmas package and nab their second victory of the season, the Kingston High School basketball squad will go to Arlington, Wednesday night, for a free lance affair with the Dut-ches county squad. Both the chess and jayvee teams will make this trip, according to an announcement by Coach G. Warren Kias. Both were victorious in their last week, and they hope to repeat.

Coach G. Warren Kias who saw his "green" five triumph over a veteran Middie outfit 42-28 Friday night at the municipal auditorium, is wary of the unknown Arlington team. "I know from the past that Coach Fritz Jordan would not take on Kingston unless he thought that he had a team to beat us," the Maroon mentor remarked to a reporter. "For he likes to win at all cost. However, even though the boys played top-flight ball against Middletown, we must not forget that they are inexperienced and it will take a few more games before we can tell their exact strength."

Starting Lineup
The Kingston starting lineup is expected to be the same as against Middletown last week, consisting of Bob Murray and Tony Albany at forwards, Ed Weaver at center, and Bob Miller and Len Sickler at guards.

Tony Albany, high scorer in the Middletown game with 14 points, is heading for a great season as the pacesetter of the Maroon five. All-DUSO of last year, Tony is the only veteran on the squad this year, and he looks to be the Kingston star of 1945-46. Several other boys also turned in a good performance last week. Among these were Ed Weaver, who played a beautiful game at center, Bob Murray and George Glaser who showed plenty of stuff at the forward slots, and Bob Miller and Len Sickler, guards, who proved their defensive ability by holding such sharpshooters as Bobby Wilman and Charlie Murray to four points. Ed McCordie, Bob Gheare, and Harry Koch who saw action in the Middie contest, although lacking experience, showed great promise for the future.

Untried Talent
Among the untried candidates for the varsity slots who did not get into the Middletown game are Ken Lowe, Mike Rizzo, Tommy McGraw, and Bruce Quick. All of these boys showed great promise on last year's jayvee squad, and are looked to be strong candidates for varsity slots in the future.

The Maroon jayvee squad will also see action this week when they oppose the Arlington Juniors in the prelude to the Dutchess county court tomorrow night. Victorious over the Crescents 53-33 in their season's inaugural last week, the forces of Coach Jim Tobin hope to bag their second win of the season at Arlington. Although Coach Tobin is still experimenting with his lineup, it is expected that Mort Gazlay, center; Paul Kaman and Lafayette Halstein forwards; and Jack Fitzpatrick and Ding Tilius guards, will be in the starting lineup Wednesday night.

DUSO Game Friday
The Maroon varsity will continue the DUSO season Friday night at Port Jervis when they face the Red Raiders. Although Coach Tobin is still experimenting with his lineup, it is expected that Mort Gazlay, center; Paul Kaman and Lafayette Halstein forwards; and Jack Fitzpatrick and Ding Tilius guards, will be in the starting lineup Wednesday night.

Training Is Favored
Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—John Stelle, national commander of the American Legion, declared at a Congressional hearing today that the United States must "keep a guncocked through adoption of universal military training. Submitting to the House Military Committee the Legion's plan for four months of intensive training, Stelle said: "That gun can be in the form of a large, standing armed force or it can be in the form of a small highly-trained regular force and trained citizen army and reserve components." "The first is repugnant to our way of life, but the second conforms to it," he added.

Eugenie M'Evoy Is Honored in Albany

Twenty-three oil paintings by Eugenie M'Evoy of Woodstock, N. Y., make up her present one-man show in the Round Gallery of the Albany Institute of History and Art. These works will remain on view through December 30.

On Thursday afternoon a reception and tea will be held for this artist at the Institute from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock. Members and friends are invited.

The majority of the pieces on display are flower studies—gay bouquet arrangements that set a note of color and sparkle. With these Miss M'Evoy shows a number of landscapes and genre paintings.

Noteworthy are her "Kitten and Flowers," the lush green "Landscape Near Kingston," and a study called simply "Flowers." This last is from the Albany Institute collections and is one of the Institute Purchase Prizes from the 10th Annual Exhibit of Artists of the Upper Hudson, held at the museum last spring. Miss M'Evoy has shown in a number of these annual artists' shows.

Army Discloses XB-36 Details; Is Ready for Flight

Arnold Says Plane Would Weigh More Than 250,000 Pounds; 5 Bomb Bays

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Army Air Force disclosed today some additional details of its colossal super-bomber, the Consolidated Valiant XB-36. It said in a monthly publication, Air Force, that the huge plane was "about to take to the air."

A drawing of the bomber showed it with lines resembling those of the Boeing B-29 Superfortress, except that the six engines are set into the after part of the wing and the propellers push rather than pull.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the A.A.F., discussing the new weapon recently, said it would weigh more than 250,000 pounds and have an operating radius of 5,000 miles. This compares with a peak gross weight of 140,000 pounds and about 1,600-mile radius for the B-29.

Air Force gave these general facts about the XB-36, which is being built at Fort Worth, Texas: The fuselage is 163 feet long and 150 inches in diameter. The tail rises 46 feet 7 inches above the ground. Its fore and aft compartments are linked by a pressurized tunnel as in the B-29. The crew will total 17, including relief crewmen. There will be sleeping accommodations and a galley to prepare hot meals. It will operate at more than 30,000 feet altitude and can make non-stop flights from Tokyo to New York as "matter of course."

The engines will be Pratt & Whitney "Majors," the four-bank radial, air-cooled monsters recently announced as having an emergency power rating of more than 3,650 horsepower each. Cooling will be by air taken in through ducts in the leading edge of the wing.

The wheels are 110 inches (over nine feet) in diameter, and one weighs 1,500 pounds. The bomber will have a tricycle landing gear, with double main wheels and a single nose wheel.

The drawing indicates five bomb bays. A transport version also is being built and is expected to accommodate 200 passengers. An order for it has been placed by Pan American Airways.

By comparison with the XB-36, the B-29 has a wingspan of 141 feet and a length of 98 feet. Its normal gross is 135,000 pounds.

Investigations Bureau Will Increase Staff

New York, Dec. 18 (AP)—The special investigations bureau of the State Taxation and Finance Department had completed plans today to increase its staff for continuation of an "extensive drive" against evasion of state income tax and other levies.

Nathan M. Mitchell, head of the bureau, also told the State Society of Certified Public Accountants yesterday that his office had collected more than $10,000,000 in taxes and penalties during the past 10 years at a cost of only $100,000 to the state. Declaring "many people wonder how the bureau expects to uncover tax evasion, especially with all the talk now current on black market operations," Mitchell said: "The bureau frequently receives letters from business enemies, disgruntled employees, jealous neighbors, etc. In addition, most companies in any industry are so interlarded with the same suppliers and customers that investigation of one opens an entire field, and similar inter-relationships between industries are frequently found."

Regarding prosecution of tax evaders, Mitchell said they were punished according to the degree of apparent criminality, or lack of it. Generally no criminal prosecutions were recommended, he added, where the taxpayer has made a truly voluntary and complete disclosure of misstatements in a tax return before an investigation was started.

Master-elect Strobel appointed the following officers to serve during 1946: Chaplain, the Rev. Herbert Killinger; senior deacon, Robert J. Hudler; junior deacon, George E. Groves, as acting grand master, conducted the election and installed the officers. He was assisted by Charles W. Shultis as acting grand marshal, and the Rev. Charles L. Emperor Loses Divinity

Tokyo, Dec. 18 (AP)—Dr. Kotaro Tanaka, chief of the Bureau of School Education in the Education ministry, told Kyoto News Agency today that General MacArthur's directive "abolishing state Shintosis strips the emperor of his divinity but permits the Japanese to regard him as 'the object of reverence as a sovereign ruler.' Hereafter, he said, school children no longer will be told to regard the emperor as a divinity. Japanese history as now being taught also should be re-examined, he proposed.

IN YOUR PLACE I'D TELEPHONE

A great many readers have been commenting lately on the inconvenience of unexpected and over-seeing visits that their friends have been inclined to pay. This letter from a visitor's angle is, therefore, timely. "My girl friend and I disagree on something that we would like you to settle for us. A former co-worker has invited us to come to see her any time we can. I think we should just go without telephoning. My friend thinks we should let her know ahead of time. My contention is that if we telephone her, she will feel that she should ask us to come to dinner or anyway make some special preparation. She lives half an hour's ride away—this means a difference."

This last detail does further emphasize my opinion that telephoning would be the better plan especially if you make your appointment for a mid-afternoon hour Saturday or Sunday. If you want to be sure that she will not feel it necessary to prepare for your staying, tell her you are coming out for the drive and will stop in to see her for half an hour and please not prepare anything for you.

Since the war it has become the customary practice to say frankly, "We really don't want anything to eat or drink," and mean it!

Two Bridesmaids

Dear Mrs. Post: I am having my two best friends as attendants. One I promised years ago and since that promise have been her maid of honor. The other girl is a newer friend but equally dear to me now. What can I call these two girls and how shall they walk in the procession? There will be only these two for me and four ushers.

Answer: Unless the church is so small that they really look better in single file, they should walk together and be called "bridesmaids." You can divide the maid of honor's duties between them by having the older friend hold your bouquet at the wedding, and having the other one straighten out your train. Have them draw lots to see which one is to stand on your right at the reception, and if you are having a bridal table, draw lots again to see which one is to sit on the left of the bridegroom.

Knife and Fork at Rest

Dear Mrs. Post: How should the knife and fork be left on the plate?

Answer: The implements are left close together with handles pointing at the diner's right shoulder. Be sure the handles are far enough on the plate to prevent their tipping off when the plate is removed.

Television Firms Are Charged With Trust Violations

Civil Action Filed in U. S. District Court for Southern New York, Clark Says

Washington, Dec. 18 (AP)—Attorney General Tom C. Clark today announced a civil suit charging anti-trust violations in the manufacture of television equipment has been filed against five corporations and three individuals.

His announcement identified the defendants as Paramount Pictures Corp., Television Productions, Inc., General Precision equipment Corp., Scophony Corp. of America, Scophony, Ltd., Arthur Levey, Basil G. Hines, and Paul Hainbourn.

The Justice Department identified Scophony, Ltd., as a British firm with headquarters in London. Clark said the civil action was filed in the United States District Court for southern New York.

Clark's announcement said the complaint alleged that the defendants "entered into a conspiracy whereby General Precision and Television Productions have complete control over the promotion, utilization or suppression of the Scophony inventions within the western hemisphere, particularly the United States."

The announcement said further that under the alleged conspiracy: "The world was divided into two non-competitive areas so that Scophony, Ltd., would not compete within the western hemisphere and General Precision and Television Productions would not compete within the eastern hemisphere."

Scophony Corp. would not compete in either hemisphere. Other manufacturers of electronic equipment were prevented from making and selling products embodying the Scophony inventions.

Clark's statement said that Television Productions is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Paramount and General Precision is the largest single stockholder in the 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation. Clark said the stock of Scophony Corporation is owned and controlled by General Precision, Television Productions and Scophony Limited.

car of the train jammed into the opening. The first car buckled in the middle and the second car partially telescoped it.

The motorman, Michael J. Mullin, 36, of (368 East 152nd St.) New York, was crushed in his tiny motorman's cab, DuBois said.

Emergency crews and rescue workers struggled for more than three hours cutting away twisted steel with acetylene torches before finally freeing two men and a woman trapped in the lead car.

They were identified as Robert Kelly, 49, conductor, of (388 East 151st St.) New York; Chester Middleton, conductor, Newark, and Alice Horowitz, 39, of Newark.

They were taken to St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, where Middleton's condition was listed as critical.

Police said the 49 injured persons were lowered with ropes from the jammed cars to the tracks and the carried back on stretchers to the 40-foot embankment on which the railroad rises from the Harrison, N. J., station as it approaches the bridge.

The injured were treated at City Hospital and St. Michael's where 12 were detained.

Chief Siebold said doors in the last five cars of the train opened quickly enabling those not seriously injured to make their way to the tracks and down the embankment.

McVay Tells Why Course Was Taken

judgment, he immediately told him to pass word to abandon ship.

The executive officer went below to carry out that order, McVay continued, "and I didn't see him again."

Meanwhile, McVay said he ordered the navigator to go to the radio room to make certain a distress message had been transmitted and "to send another report if the ship was sinking rapidly and needed help."

"My first concern was to get out the distress messages," McVay testified.

About eight minutes after the explosion, he said he told the officer of the deck he was going to the radio shack himself to make sure a distress message went out. When he reached the signal bridge, he said, the ship took a sudden list and seemed to hold at about 60 degrees. Then within 30 seconds it went over to 90 degrees, he said.

Capt. McVay said he then stood upright on the ship's side and made his way toward transmits, having in mind this part of the ship might remain afloat and he could cling on until daylight.

He was swept off, however, by a wave.

"I struck out into the darkness," he said. "I heard a splash, looked back and the ship was gone."

Stalin Has Gone Back to Moscow

Foreign Ministers Resume Talks, Discuss Some Basic Issues

Moscow, Dec. 18 (AP)—Generalissimo Stalin, rested by a long vacation, was back at his desk today as the foreign ministers of Soviet Russia, Great Britain and the United States prepared for their third formal session on world problems with a feeling of reserved optimism.

Stalin returned from his 68-day holiday yesterday, just four days before his 66th birthday, and plunged immediately into his duties as president of the Council of People's Commissars.

His long absence from the Kremlin had given rise to rumors abroad that he was ill, but these reports had been denied both by Soviet officials and by U. S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, who waited for him at his Black Sea retreat near Sochi.

Harriman reported on his return that he had found Stalin in excellent health and enjoying his holiday. Similar assurances as to the generalissimo's health were given only two days ago to U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin by high Soviet officials.

The announcement of Stalin's return came as the "Big Three" foreign ministers, meeting here since Sunday, finished their preliminary talks and prepared to get down to discussion of some of the basic issues of world peace and prosperity which were believed to be on their agenda.

The ministers were scheduled to meet for their third regular session at 4 p. m. (9 a. m. E.S.T.). Both Byrnes and Bevin were said by diplomatic observers to have emerged from yesterday's meeting with a feeling of reserved optimism, looking not so much for concrete agreements in the future sessions as for a free exchange of ideas on such problems as control of atomic energy and a better understanding between the great powers.

Yesterday's meeting, presided over by Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov as permanent chairman, lasted two hours and 15 minutes. There was no announcement of the progress made, but an observer said the ministers met in an atmosphere of "serious, businesslike discussion."

Meanwhile, the New Times, important Soviet semi-monthly publication of political opinion, declared in an editorial that "the responsibility for peace in the coming atomic century is bigger than ever before" and the peace-loving nations should prove now that they can collaborate on a lasting basis.

Asserting that the will of the Soviet Union for close international collaboration "is unshaken," the editorial said "other countries" should cast aside "attempts to find a way out of the situation by methods which have nothing in common with the spirit of unanimity and accord in which great powers should act to provide peace and security."

Among seven men from Kingston and vicinity who have applied for enlistment in the regular army is Staff Sergeant Donald G. Beany of 411 Albany avenue, a football favorite when the old Kingston Yellow Jackets played at the former uptown Fair Grounds and the Municipal Stadium.

Announcement of Beany's application for re-enlistment was made today by Capt. Harry W. Smith of the Kingston recruiting office in the central post office building, who remarked that the army is glad to sign men like the former athlete.

Beany was recently discharged from Battery C, 863rd Antiaircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion as a staff sergeant. He served with a supply unit in the European Theatre of Operations during the war.

All told, Sergeant Beany has nine years of service to his credit. Back in the years when he played football he was with the United States Military Academy Detachment of Field Artillery, West Point. Upon discharge from the Point, he made his home in Kingston and married Miss Margaret N. Fields.

Beany saw service in central Europe, Normandy, Northern France and the Rhineland. He holds the European-African-Middle Eastern Service Medal, Good Conduct Medal, World War 2 Victory Medal and the American Service Medal.

Dublin Dec. 18.—We come to that vexatious question of why the Eire government maintained neutrality during the war and refused requests of the United States and Britain for badly needed naval bases.

That's a hot potato, but it has to be handled, and the sooner the better. I think perhaps the best way to approach it is to tell you an extraordinary incident that has happened to me here in the capital of Eire.

I went with my camera to get a picture of the fine old Parliament building. Having secured permission of the sentry on duty by the big iron gates to the courtyard, I proceeded to make four shots. I had much difficulty because a huge statue of Queen Victoria stood right in front of the building and there was no way of outflanking it. As I was maneuvering for a fresh position, a minor government employee intervened and said I wouldn't be permitted to publish such a photo.

"We can't have a picture of the Parliament building taken with the Queen in front of it," he declared with such finality that I promptly removed my film roll and landed it to him.

"Well," I remarked as I eyed the likeness of the famous Queen who has been dead these 45 years, "I knew the feeling here against England was bitter, but I didn't suppose it was this bad."

He half turned away, and ducked his head, by way of humorous acknowledgment that I had got my pictures off, and I went back to my hotel, not at all annoyed but on the contrary much interested. Of course by the time I arrived at my hostel I received profuse apologies by telephone from the head of one of the government departments, and he himself brought the film back to me. He said the seizure had been absurd.

The affair was settled with such good-will that I repeat the story here only because it gives us the real key to our question of neutrality.

The cold fact is that the people of Southern Ireland as a whole are so bitter towards Britain that political circles here will tell you quietly there would have been open revolt in some quarters if the government had granted bases and thus joined in the war on the side of England.

The government of Eire and the majority of the public regard England as an invader because of the partition of Ireland into two sections. I don't propose to debate this fiery question here, but merely state the fact that this is the way the folk of Southern Ireland feel. We can go a bit further and say that had the two sections been united when the war began, the probabilities are that the Emerald Isle would have come in on the side of the Allies. Also it wasn't because of any unfriendliness towards America that Ireland didn't come into the war for a long time. It was the most cordial feeling here. It wasn't because Eire wanted the Germans to win, either. As a matter of fact, many thousands of Southern Irishmen served with the British fighting forces as volunteers.

I dare say one could dig up further reasons for neutrality, but to my mind we always get back to the great feud between the Southern Irish and the English—a bloody quarrel which runs through the centuries to the early Irish kings who finally succumbed to the invaders.
